

What is the message of this story? What do you think the creators are trying to tell the audience? How do you know?
